Oregon Cultural Trust

June 2008

Dear Oregon Cultural Trust supporters and partners,

Through June 30, 2007 (the close of FY 2007), Oregonians once again increased giving to the Oregon Cultural Trust, reaffirming the core principles of the Trust. Oregon citizens value the contributions that cultural nonprofits make to their communities and appreciate the need to develop a sustainable permanent endowment to support them into the future.

Revenues rose significantly in FY 2007: $2.8 million in contributions; $293,000 in license plate sales; $335,000 in interest; and $225,000 in foundation support for a total of nearly $3.8 million, significantly boosting the endowment and benefiting FY 2008 grantees.

In FY 2007, the fourth year of grantmaking, the Cultural Trust awarded $1.13 million in grants across the state, the largest to two of Oregon's major cultural organizations: the Oregon Shakespeare Festival for a world premiere adaptation of William Saroyan's Tracy's Tiger and to Oregon Public Broadcasting for its innovative TV history series, "The Oregon Experience." First time grants were awarded to 23 arts, heritage and humanities nonprofits.

The Trust grew and changed as an organization as well. George Bell, a key supporter of the Trust since its inception, retired from the board; and Charlie Walker, one of Oregon's most ardent cultural advocates, stepped down as Chairman, a position he'd held since 2003. It was my honor to accept the Chairman's position and to welcome Nick Fish of Portland and Pamela Hulse Andrews of Bend to our work. Virginia Willard, Executive Director of Northwest Business for Culture and the Arts, became a Special Advisor.

Our staff worked tirelessly – and to great effect – to advance the mission of the Trust as more and more Oregonians came to understand the value of investing in the vibrancy of their own communities through Oregon's unique cultural tax credit program.

Please join me in recruiting more of your family, friends and colleagues to this cause. Every Oregonian should participate in the Cultural Trust, which the Eugene Register-Guard has ranked with the bottle and beach bills as among Oregon's most progressive public policy initiatives.

About the Cultural Trust

The Oregon Legislature authorized the Oregon Cultural Trust with a near unanimous vote in July 2001. The enabling legislation includes three key elements:

GOVERNANCE: A board of nine, seven appointed by the Governor; one by the Speaker of the Oregon House of Representatives; one by the President of the Oregon Senate.

INCOME: Contributions using the cultural tax credit, cultural license plate sales, income from the sale of surplus state assets.

GRANTMAKING AND OPERATIONS: 58% to the permanent Oregon Cultural endowment, 34.5% for grantmaking, 7.5% for operations.

The Trust also seeks the counsel of Oregon's five statewide cultural partners.

The museum benefited from a technical assistance program offered by the State Historic Preservation Office and the Oregon Heritage Commission, with funds from the Cultural Trust.

Vision

Oregon's cultural resources – the arts, heritage and the humanities – are strong and dynamic contributors to Oregon's communities and quality of life.

Mission

To enhance the lives of Oregonians by implementing a sustainable public-private integrated cultural funding program that will support, stabilize and protect Oregon culture: the humanities, heritage and the arts. The Trust will expand public awareness of, quality of, access to and use of culture in Oregon.

Cultural Partner Grants: Statewide Support for Arts, Heritage and Humanities

Each year, one-third of the Cultural Trust's grant money is distributed to the state's five statewide cultural partners in arts, heritage and humanities – Oregon Arts Commission, Oregon Council for the Humanities, Oregon Heritage Commission, Oregon Historical Society and State Historic Preservation Office.

In FY 2007, the Trust awarded $376,974 in Partner grants. Each year, the partners reserve 20% of their total grant allocation for a collaborative project. In FY 2007, they directed $75,395 of that year's allocation, plus over $109,000 in reserve from two previous years' collaborative funds, to support expanded marketing and outreach of the Trust. Those additional dollars played an important role in attracting more donations to the Trust.

The Oregon Heritage Commission and the State Historic Preservation Office combined their Partner grant funds to launch an innovative regional technical assistance program for heritage nonprofits. By contracting with regional heritage groups to provide the training, the Heritage Commission and Preservation Office broadened the reach of their technical assistance. The Tamástlikt Cultural Institute on the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Reservation provided training in heritage best practices to organizations in northeast Oregon, while the Southern Oregon Historical Society provided similar service in Jackson and Josephine counties.

The Oregon Historical Society devoted its FY 2007 grant to the start-up of the Oregon Encyclopedia, an online reference developed in partnership with Portland State University. The Encyclopedia will tell the Oregon story with many voices and interactive links and, since it will reside on the web, it will enable Oregon history to live in the present ... and the future.

With its FY 2007 grant, the Oregon Council for the Humanities was able to achieve its goal of extending its Chautauqua programs to every one of Oregon's 36 counties. Chautauquas bring scholars to libraries, schools, museums and community centers to engage Oregonians on a wide range of topics of intellectual, civic and political import. Cultural Trust funds also supported the Humanities Council's public program grants, such as Everybody Reads and One Book, which bring communities together to read about and discuss issues such as poverty, water and land use, and race.

The Oregon Arts Commission used its FY 2007 Trust funds to publish Oregon's first (and nation's second) Creative Vitality Index, and to support Artist Fellowships to eleven performing and literary fellows throughout the state. One of them, young saxophonist Devin Phillips has had a remarkably steep trajectory. In 2005, fleeing the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, he and his band found refuge – and a warm welcome – in the Portland jazz community. They recorded a debut CD, "Devin Phillips: Wade in the Water" in Portland; were featured at the 2006 and 2007 Portland Jazz Festivals; and were chosen by the State Department to represent the United States on an international tour. By the end of the year, Phillips had formed the Oregon Jazz Orchestra, adding to the velocity of Oregon's creative vitality.

Cultural Coalitions: Bedrock of the Oregon Cultural Trust

The Oregon Cultural Trust was established to strengthen and advance arts, heritage and humanities throughout Oregon and to make culture available to every Oregon citizen. Through a network of cultural coalitions, the Trust has a presence in – and brings funding to – every single one of Oregon’s 36 counties and the nine federally-recognized tribes.

Each coalition, composed of volunteer community cultural leaders, has developed its own cultural plan and guidelines and deadlines for local grants. They decide how to allocate monies provided to them each year through the Trust’s Cultural Participation grant program.

Cultural Participation grants account for one-third of the funds distributed by the Trust each year. In FY 2007, that totaled $376,974. That year, every coalition was allocated a base grant of $5,000 plus a multiplier based on population, with grants ranging from $5,014 (Burns-Paiute Tribe) to $33,810 (Multnomah County Cultural Coalition).

The coalition system allows the Trust’s grantmaking to be deep as well as broad. The coalitions bring the Trust’s investments to the grassroots, where cultural activities benefit and resonate throughout every community.

“Why is culture important in building quality of life? Because it is in the hundreds of cultural organizations throughout Oregon that people come together to create public programs, to preserve elements of history that explain our roots, to discuss with each other important human issues and to develop enjoyable public events, all of which bring people together. That informal but persistent building of human relationships and connections is where community spirit develops which, in turn, provides the bedrock of human connections that is fundamental to achieving our larger goals.”

Tamástslíkt Cultural Institute

In Spring 2007, the Tamástslíkt Cultural Institute on the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla reservation used $7,000 in grant funds from the Cultural Trust to host “Corps of Discovery in Our Camp,” a series of field experiences for elementary students.

Over nine days in April and May, 1,600 children from 25 schools traveled from as far away as 100 miles to learn about tribal life in the early 19th century, at the exact time of year when the Lewis and Clark Expedition passed through the tribal lands in what is now northeast Oregon.

According to Tamástslíkt Development Officer John Chess, the interactive curriculum was designed to engage the children with the characters and descendants of the people who were there in 1806. Following presentations – complete with authentic uniforms and artifacts like hunting tools and medical equipment – by seasoned interpreters of historic personages, the children visited Tamástslíkt’s living culture village where they met tribal members who demonstrated the use of stone tools and the lore and regalia of horses in tribal culture. Learning to use an atlatl to propel spears and to play a traditional hide-the-dice game added elements of physical prowess and competition to the program.

The three-hour experience humanized what had only been textbook facts for the students and gave them a personal sense of the history they share with the tribe. Tamástslíkt Education Coordinator Susan Sheoships noted that many children proudly told her of their own Indian heritage, making “Corps of Discovery in Our Camp” an important lesson in self-awareness as well.

Cultural Development Grants: Direct Support for Cultural Nonprofits

Each year, arts, heritage and humanities nonprofits apply for Cultural Development grants from the Trust. Those grants, another third of the Trust’s annual distribution, are awarded to projects that will have a significant impact on the cultural life of the state throughout the year of the grant.

For FY 2007 (July 1, 2006 – June 30, 2007), the Trust awarded $384,226 in grants to 54 arts, heritage and humanities nonprofits across Oregon. Twenty-three of those organizations received grants from the Trust for the first time, in a highly competitive process. The number of first time grantees speaks to the extending reach of Trust grantmaking through FY 2007. In addition, two $25,000 grants (the most money ever awarded by the Trust) affirm the growing significance of projects proposed to the Trust.

High Desert Museum

Work on the Robbins Homestead, a re-creation of an 1869 eastern Oregon ranch, began soon after the High Desert Museum was established in 1982. Over the years, it grew from an interpretive site into a living history installation. When the museum established a relationship with Bureau of Land Management's Wild Horse project, it quickly became evident that the homestead needed a barn and corral.

The museum's FY 2007 $10,000 grant from the Trust was used to complete the barn's authentic construction with timbers cut from an on-site century-old sawmill. The barn, with its board and batten exterior and timber frame interior, was built by volunteers with oversight by historic construction specialist Pete Cecil and Bob Boyd, the museum's western history curator.

The barn area was eventually outfitted with historically appropriate peeled-juniper post and willow corrals, and a graceful stand of Lombardy poplars for shade. Now known as the Blair Place Homestead/Ranch, the site is a tribute to the entrepreneurial spirit of eastern Oregon's pioneer homesteaders.

Miracle Theatre Company, $5,000

For production of and educational outreach for Emilio Carballido's Rosalba y los Llaveros, considered the first modern Mexican comedy.

The Dalles Art Association, $3,000

To launch a juried Gorge artists' studio tour in April 2007, with a business skills workshop for artists, a tour website and directory of participating artists.

Portland Center Stage and Third Rail Repertory Theatre

Through two grants, $9,000 in 2006 to Portland Center Stage and $5,000 in 2007 to Third Rail Repertory Theatre, Cultural Trust funds followed a play's intriguing path from work-in-progress to world premiere.

The grant to Portland Center Stage supported JAW/West, the theater's annual festival of new plays, which in July 2005 presented a workshop production of Ebbe Roe Smith's semi-autobiographical Number Three, about the Keystone Kops-experiences of the youngest of three children in a dysfunctional 1950s Navy family.

Through the development process, the playwright focused primarily on the play's ending. In fact, the uncritical, open-ended JAW/West process allowed Smith to make changes through the very day of the staged reading. Portland Center Stage Literary Director Mead Hunter reports that Number Three's fresh originality, child's-eye perspective and wacky physical humor made it a clear audience favorite.

Third Rail Artistic Director Scott Yarbrough joined in that admiration, drawn to the play by its strong characters and language and how it set 50s sitcom familiarity on its ear and used humor to dangerous effect. With nearly all the JAW/West cast following the production to Third Rail, the actors' perspective in rehearsal added even more depth to the characters as the playwright re-worked the ending once again.

When Number Three debuted at Third Rail in January 2007, it sported a third evolution of the final scene. The play that began in 2005 and ended in 2007, and was supported with Trust funding all the way, won a 2007 Drammy (Portland's version of the Tony) for Outstanding Original Script.

Individual donors to the Trust may claim a cultural tax credit of up to $500; couples filing jointly, up to $1,000. In FY 2007, 7,900 individual donors took advantage of the cultural tax credit in order to strengthen arts, heritage and humanities across Oregon. Their support speaks to a determination to preserve and advance our shared cultural traditions for future generations.

It is the Trust's intention to provide a complete and accurate list of donors from July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2007. We apologize for any omissions or errors. If you find a mistake, please let us know right away so we can update our database and note the correction in the FY 2008 report.

Andrew Willette at work on the project to document, preserve and use the Aurora Colony Historical Society's unique 19th century pioneer music library. The project, which received a $4,000 Cultural Trust grant in 2007, has resulted in the music being played at several community concerts.

Fueled by Culture

Since 1982, Salem’s Kettle Foods has been making “chips you’ll still respect in the morning.” Made from all natural, locally grown Oregon russet potatoes, the award-winning chips contain no artificial ingredients. The oils used in the hand-turned cooking process not only result in a cholesterol-free, delicious snack but are recycled into bio-diesel to fuel the company’s three Flower Power beetles. Kettle Foods Ambassador Jim Green, one of the company’s first employees, is seen here with two of those cars – all of which are tagged with the Cultural Trust license plate. Just another sign of Kettle Foods’ conscientious commitment to sustainability, community and all things Oregon.

Cultural License Plate Sales Continue to Grow

Culture has many rewards ...

... Claim yours.

First, join or contribute to any number of Oregon's 1,200 arts, heritage and humanities nonprofits. Next, by December 31, match your donations with a gift to the Oregon Cultural Trust. Then, claim an Oregon tax credit for 100% of your gift to the Trust, reducing taxes owed by up to $500 for individuals, $1,000 for married couples or $2,500 for corporations.

Your gift to the Trust supports grant programs that benefit 1,200 cultural nonprofits and every county in Oregon.
